Impact of social protection on the Gini coefficient (% reduction)

Some groups are better covered than others

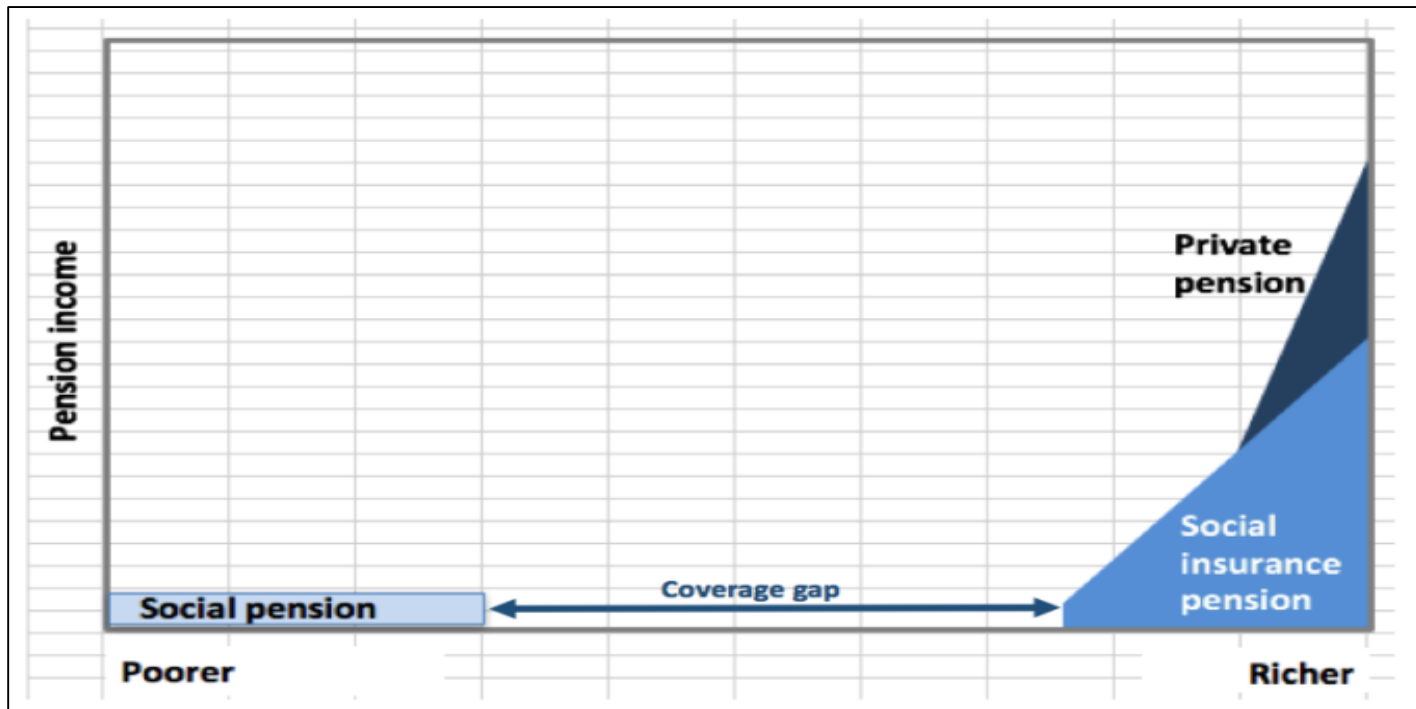

Commonalities in the barriers to the effective coverage of the groups selected

- Informal employment: youth, persons with disabilities, migrants, members of ethnic minorities, especially women
- Location: some indigenous peoples and ethnic minorities, migrants
- Policy formulation, design and implementation: contributory and tax-financed measures (non-contributory); targeted vs. universal; conditional vs. non-conditional; registration and payment; accessible information).

Example of exclusion from social protection: systems with both contributory and targeted schemes can create a coverage gap in the middle

Three key conditions for social protection to leave no one behind

1. Availability: pursuing universal coverage with strong legal framework
2. Accessibility: to all without discrimination
3. Adequacy: to provide income security
